Mr. Tilden has lost none of his old-time cunning. Give him half a chance and he will get away with the democratic nomination.

There are still no prospects that the strike among the telegraph operators will soon terminate. No efforts are being made to effect a compromise.

Mr. Barnum is a very modest man. When he stood on the summit of Mt. Washington the other day and beheld the grand scene that God and Nature had made, he humbly said, "This is the second greatest show on earth."

Ex-Congressman George C. Hazleton, has returned from Washington, and is now at his home in Rosebush. The injury he received on a New York ferry last spring has kept him in Washington until the past week. His general health is not good.

Secretary Chandler is advised to take the kicking republicans in New Hampshire on an excursion on some of the vessels that belong to the navy. The chances are that they would encounter a little gale, the vessels would go to the bottom and Chandler would have a clean majority of straight republicans left.

When Conway, the boatman, who took Captain Webb to the rapids, told the great swimmer that he did not expect to see him again, "Yes you will," said Webb. "I am an Englishman." But Conway was right, and the great whirlpool of the Niagara took him down just as if he wasn't an Englishman. The maelstrom is no respecter of nationality, but Webb did not think of that until it was too late.

Mr. Samuel L. Clemens, "Mark Twain," who is frequently depressed by melancholy, takes delight in showing his visitors a little grove in which he chopped wood last and by the chopping cured himself of thirteen distic diseases. Clemens, with all his wealth, luxury in living, fame, and humor, is sorely troubled in mind at times, and it is by hard work only that he can rid himself of these fits of melancholy.

The Indiana supreme court rendered a decision recently which is an important step towards a reform in the present manner of selecting jurors. The decision holds that the reading of a newspaper account of a crime or of a civil case and the formation of an opinion from reading the account, is no bar to service upon a jury of which the case is to be decided. The present method of rejecting all such men, on juries, is a bad thing for law and justice and a serious reflection on intelligence. The more a man reads, the more he is prejudiced thereby, the better jurymen he will make and the better it will be for both plaintiff and defendant.

In recognition of the vast interest now shown in the raising and development of horticultural products, and the benefits to be derived therefrom, the Milwaukee industrial exposition association takes pleasure in offering premiums for exhibits in the horticultural department of its third annual exhibition, opening in Milwaukee September 6th and closing on Saturday, October 20th, 1883. This departure is meeting with universal favor throughout the state and it is intended, with public co-operation, to make the horticultural display one of the principal features of the coming exhibition. The large conservatory of the exposition building is being fitted up and put in excellent condition for the reception of these products, and a competent gardener, employed by the association, will be in constant attendance to care for the same.

The programme at the Monona Lake assembly to-morrow (Saturday) is as follows:

8:00—Children's class: topic, "The King's Law."
9:00—Class—Prof. W. F. Sherwin.
10:00—Class—Prof. V. A. Pinkley.

4:00—Grand platform meeting—addressed by Rev. O. H. Tiffany, D. D., and Pres. Walter G. Scott, D. D., and select readings by Miss Hallie Q. Brown and Prof. Virgil A. Pinkley. Music by the assembly choir and by the Willforce concert company. This service will be for the children, and the interest in the same will be reserved for them.
4:30—Fourth session of the Institute of Christian Philosophy. Paper by President Walter G. Scott, D. D., of Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio. Topic: "Truth, Goodness and Beauty, in their Relation to the Development of Character."

This will be children's day, and will be of unusual interest.

A story was sent from Madison that several of the state officers had expressed a wish that the operators would succeed in the strike, and that if the latter needed any financial aid the former would help the latter to maintain the strike. It seems that this report does Governor Rusk and some other state officers an injustice, and the State Journal says: "It transpires that the reporter's interview for the Milwaukee paper was very largely made up out of whole cloth. That, in any event, he never saw Governor Rusk or Commissioner Hanger, for they were out of town. Furthermore, the governor, at least, has never had a word to say on the subject, for his peculiar position as chief magistrate of the commonwealth renders it quite inadvisable to announce opinions upon strikes. The governor who was so misrepresented by the Milwaukee reporter took the precaution, upon learning of his pretended interview, to telegraph to his paper and forbid the publication of any statement pretending to emanate from the executive office."

The department of agriculture at Washington has made an estimate of the average amount of wheat consumed for food in the United States during the past five years, together with the average amount required for seed and the average exports during that time. The figures show the average home consumption to have been 233,139,786 bushels per annum, and the amount required for seed 50,800,000 bushels, while the exports averaged 115,274,678 bushels, making the total average annual consumption of American wheat during that period 429,214,529 bushels. The statistics for 1882 show that the total crop was about 501,000,000 bushels, of which 216,000,000 were consumed at home, upwards of 51,000,000 used for seed and 153,000,000 exported, leaving on hand a surplus of nearly 51,000,000 to make up deficiencies, if there be any, in the present year's crop. The department's estimates for the present year place the crop at about 435,000,000 bushels, which is a trifle over the average consumption of the past five years, although not equal to last year's consumption of 16,000,000. The year's production, however, taken in connection with the fifty million surplus earned over from last year, will amply suffice for all home requirements and an export demand as great as we have ever been called upon to fill in any one year.

CO-OPERATION.

A Co-Operative Telegraph Scheme Proposed by Strikers.

And Alleged to Have the Backing of Heavy Capitalists and Others.

The Rapid Company Full of Business—Situation at Chicago and Elsewhere—The Baltimore & Ohio.

New York, July 27.—The Brotherhood of Telegraphers has announced that it has adopted a scheme for a telegraph company suggested by a silk manufacturer of this city. The scheme of the company is, in brief, this: $100,000,000 capital is to be contributed by 300,000 members, at $300 each, and organization to be effected when 100,000 members are obtained; memberships not transferable and members not assessable nor subject to any liability; no member to hold more than one membership, and no interest or dividends to be paid. Each member is to receive annually a free pass for $20 worth of telegraphing, the excess to be transferable. If a member dies in the first year the cost of his share to be paid to his heirs; if he dies after the first year, the value of his share to be paid to his heirs if the value is not more than $200; that is, if the accumulated surplus of assets is not more than 10 per cent. If the surplus is more than 10 per cent, the death payment is to be $300; if it is more than 20 per cent, $400; and $100 more for each additional 10 per cent. No member can increase membership or terminate his interest. Twenty-one directors to be elected by subscribers. It is proposed to call the company "The Merchants and Telegraphers' association."

"The peculiarity of it," Master Workman Campbell said, "is the co-operation between those who use the wires and those who do the work. The brotherhood has been contemplating something of the kind since last October. We sent copies of our prospectus all over the United States and into Canada. It is less than a week we hope that the shares will all be subscribed for, and then work will begin. Each member of the brotherhood throughout the country will solicit subscriptions. Four capitalists have promised us that they will help make the enterprise a success. The capital is not limited to $100,000,000, but may be increased to suit circumstances. The increase of capital, however, means an increased membership, as no member can own more than one share. One-third of the executive board will consist of practical telegraphers. The Morse system will be used altogether. We can get all the instruments we want except the quadruplex, and the patent on that will run out in two years. Our wires, however, being new, and put up in modern manner, will not have such other patents which other companies may have."

THE AMERICAN RAPID.
Business opened at the American Rapid company's main office in New York with 166 operators at the keys. These included the 116 who went out on the strike and more than half of those who had been employed during the strike. An additional clerk was needed at the receiving window in the basement. "We are doing 50 per cent more business than we ever did before," Manager Sherman said. "At noon our automatic instrument had sent over 2,000 messages to Boston already." A few of the non-union operators employed by the Rapid company were discharged for inefficiency. The Rapid had forty-one branch offices open in this city. There were no delays between Boston in the east, Wilmington, N. C., and Cleveland and Pittsburgh in the west.

The opening of the Rapid lines increased greatly the business of the Southern and the Bankers & Merchants' companies. A story was circulated that the American Rapid company had offered to sell out to the Western Union for a guarantee of 25 per cent on its stock, the Western Union to assume the Rapid's debts. A number of the executive committee of the Western Union, who was asked about it, declined to make any statement. The officers of the American Rapid also refused to talk about the report. The same report was circulated a week before the strike began, and was then denied by the officers of the Western Union. By a majority of persons, the surrender of the American Rapid Telegraph company to the demands of the strikers is regarded as a certain indication that the strike is nearing its end. It is rumored that the Baltimore & Ohio company will be the next to give in, and that negotiations are now pending looking toward a consolidation with the American Rapid company, thus forming a combination against the Western Union. It was stated at the offices of the Baltimore & Ohio that the company would remain firm.

AT CHICAGO.
Chicago, July 27.—The main topic of conversation among the strikers and in telegraph circles is the action of the American Rapid company in coming to terms with the operators. The members of the brotherhood were greatly elated over their victory, but the Western Union did not show any outward signs of depression. "The company is an eastern one," Supt. Clowry said, "and its business, I believe, is mainly between New York and Philadelphia. Its action will have no influence on us." The strikers were not fully informed of the terms on which the Rapid company's operators went back to work, but it was generally understood that a compromise was agreed on, and was based on an increase in wages 10 per cent, and a full recognition of the brotherhood. This was accepted as an evidence of what might be expected in the future.

At the Western Union office business was apparently progressing more smoothly than at any time since the strike. "I can't say that there is anything new," Supt. Clowry said, "but here are reports which tell the story." A bunch of reports were produced, including one of the local situation in the morning from District Supt. Tubbs. It stated that business was cleared up in all but Wilmington, that wires being down at the time, but it was put in shape later in the day. All other routes were all right, and the prospect was good. An important telegram was received from T. T. Eckert, of the Western Union, stating that the action of that company would not be changed by any action taken by other companies. This message was understood to refer to the surrender of the American Rapid and to anticipate any like action on the part of the Baltimore & Ohio. It was intended to set at rest any reports which might be started in the future regarding the Western Union treating with the Brotherhood of Telegraphers.

At the Baltimore and Ohio office Manager McCulloch said there was nothing new and nothing, comparatively, doing. He was waiting for developments and did not expect anything startling, unless it came from the other end of the line.

The strikers had little news at their headquarters during the day, and fewer of them gathered there than usual. A dispatch was received from Master Workman Campbell, at New York, which stated positively that the Western Union cable operators at Duxbury, Mass., were out. The same news was circulated a couple of days ago, but was promptly contradicted by the Western Union officials. The strikers claimed that the Duxbury news was important, as the Western Union would be forced to give its cable lines to rival companies. "At the end of the first week of the strike," said Master Workman Morris, "I think we have great cause for encouragement. Our men in Chicago and all other cities have held together magnificently, and, I think, have convinced the public of the justice of their demands. They certainly have done nothing to be ashamed of. I can't see any signs of weakening. Our company has already made terms and we have before long to announce good news in reference to another."

"But isn't the Western Union service improving?"
"Maybe it is a little. It would be strange if they couldn't do something inside of a week. But wait. When you see those day notices taken down and kept down, then will be time to talk about the company's improved service."

The same views were expressed by other prominent strikers, who claimed that Gen. Eckert's telegram was "a tremendous bluff." "Got scared at the American Rapid," said one, "and afraid the Baltimore & Ohio will be cutting into their western business pretty soon. So they want the dear public to know that they are making a concession favoring his nomination for president. Personally he would favor Tilden's nomination if he was not too old and feeble, for the reason that he is the oldest leader in the Democratic party. Mr. Julian spoke of McDonald in the same connection as a very strong man, particularly outside of Indiana."

THE WHITE MOUNTAINS.
Boston, July 27.—A dispatch from the Crawford House, in the White mountains, states that there has been a heavy frost there.
Enterprising local agents wanted in this town for an article that is sure to sell, live druggists and grocers preferred. Address: E. J. Food Preservative Co., 72 Kilby street, Boston.

THE BALTIMORE & OHIO.
Manager McCulloch, of the Baltimore & Ohio company, who was reported as having almost made up his mind to resign on account of the disordered condition of his office, stated that the management was altogether incorrect, and that he had no such intention. "There is no doubt that things are going very unsatisfactorily in the office," the manager said, "as they are also in the Western Union, but I never said I could not work with my men. They are not experienced in commercial circles, but they are very earnest and diligent, and when they heard that I said I could not affiliate with them they got angry and talked about leaving. The thing also got to Baltimore, and it has made trouble for me, and I would be obliged if you would correct it. Of course, every man who has worked at a key has more or less sympathy with the strikers, but I have never talked with any of them on the subject of the troubles, and above all I never spoke of resigning. I never even thought of it."

Definite statements given to the rumors of negotiations with the Baltimore & Ohio when, at the evening meeting of the strikers, Master Workman Morris read a telegram from New York saying that the executive committee and Master Workman Campbell were then in conference with representatives of the Baltimore & Ohio company. Some doubt, however, was thrown on the matter by the statement that General Manager Frick was present. It was understood that Mr. Frick, who left Chicago Wednesday and could not have reached New York at the hour when the telegram was dated, the majority of the operators, however, accepted it as genuine, and were confident that later news would confirm the fact of the conference, though a mistake might have been made in regard to Mr. Frick's presence. At any rate, they thought the sentiment was so well understood that the executive committee would make some arrangement for the Baltimore & Ohio operators.

The latest reports would indicate that the strikers had some ground for their belief that the executive committee in New York was negotiating with representatives of the telegraph company. The Baltimore & Ohio officials in the east had heard reports that, notwithstanding all the assertions made, the Western Union was seeking to win the strikers over, and that one of its declared objects was to Baltimore & Ohio. The telegraph company was preparing to cross wires. The tenor of the Baltimore & Ohio's dispatches was that, while unwilling to recognize the brotherhood, the officials were determined that the Western Union should not reap the advantage of the situation, and an arrangement would be made with the operators, though the terms were indefinite. Reports from brotherhood sources also led to the belief that the Baltimore & Ohio was preparing for an active war with its rival.

AMONG THE STRIKERS.
There was no sign of weakening at the evening meeting. Six men were initiated who it was claimed had been working for the Western Union at $1 per hour, and one C. M. Kinsman, was charged with being a spy and expelled.
More wires have been cut, but the strikers indignantly deny that any of their men have been guilty of the vandalism. The company officials do not directly charge the operators with doing this, but say it is possible that some of them to gratify a petty spite are the guilty ones. On the other hand, the strikers say that the company has done meaner things than cutting its own wires, and think it highly probable that it has done this to obtain public sympathy.

THE RAILROAD TELEGRAPHERS.
Visits to the headquarters of the different railroads were made by reporters. The officials say that they have required none of their operators to work Western Union wires, but intimate that some of them are working overtime in Western Union offices, and that railway operators should be opposed if the railway operators should be opposed and should respond, there would practically be a stoppage of traffic of all kinds, as all trains are now run by telegraph, and without this means of communication dangers would be encountered that could not but result in disasters that would imperil both life and property, if not absolutely stop the running of trains of all kinds until the telegraph service should be restored.

OTHER POINTS.
The usual conflicting reports were received by the company and the strikers. On the one hand it was stated that reports showed a decided improvement in the state of affairs, while the operators had dispatches of a precisely contrary tenor. There may be said to be no important change in the general situation, except that with a more efficient distribution of its forces, the Western Union is probably doing some better than heretofore between important telegraph centers.

FRENCH POLITICS.
Stories of Bribery of French Senators.

PARIS, July 27.—The Republic Radical has started all Paris by the publication of a long and circumstantial account of the systematic bribery which it declares has been supporting the scheme to induce the government to buy out railways not already under government control. The Republic asserts that many members of the chamber of deputies were under regular salaries to advocate the scheme, and that nearly all these had a large bonus in prospect if their efforts were successful. It even gives some names and indicates many others. The case made out by the paper is one of the most complete cases of political scandal on a large scale ever made out and involves so many favorite names that the chamber will undoubtedly be compelled to order an investigation or a prosecution of the paper. The Bonapartists point to the scandal as a necessary example of what they call "the inevitable corruption and disgrace which attend all republican governments which, like the United States of America, permit men reared among thieves to secure places of power."

Geo. W. Julian on the "Old Ticket."
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 27.—The Hon. George W. Julian was asked what truth lay in the report that he was to strike the keynote for the Tilden boom in this city at an early date, and he professed that the only information thereon came from the press. He believed, however, that there was something in the air indicating a movement favoring his nomination for president. Personally he would favor Tilden's nomination if he was not too old and feeble, for the reason that he is the oldest leader in the Democratic party. Mr. Julian spoke of McDonald in the same connection as a very strong man, particularly outside of Indiana.

Do you believe that there is a large class of patients who are suffering from disease, and that they have been very much injured by the treatment of disease? We must come to this conclusion in precisely the same way that we have reached the conclusion that a man is a skillful physician—by what they accomplish, and by the testimony of those who have used them. The results of a patient medicine is sustained by exactly the same evidence that supports a skillful physician's reputation.

Many of these medicines came out of the regular practice, and were prepared and originally prescribed by the best physicians. A very few of them we believe are humbug and frauds in the consciousness of the intent of their makers.

The people who are necessarily the judges, both of doctors and of medicines say that these medicines are not all frauds, and if human testimony is good for anything, this fact is established.

NEW YORK, July 26.—The Tribune has the following: Congressman Morrison, of Illinois, is believed to be willing to accept the Democratic nomination for governor of the state, provided the Republicans do not make Charles Oglesby their candidate. In the latter event he thinks the race would be hopeless one for any Democrat. He is reported as saying; "Oglesby is well known in Illinois. He was an ardent soldier, wounded almost to death in battle. On the stump he is a majesty. It can be said of him that which cannot be said of a politician." A member of the state senate is also said to have remarked that "There isn't a man in Illinois who remembers the war, who was soldier, the son or father of a soldier, who would not vote for General 'Dick' Oglesby." The Democrats, it is believed, contemplate naming Carter Harrison for governor, if Oglesby heads the Republican ticket. They will then let him be defeated and so, ho, ho, ho!

LEVY THE CORNETIST

And His Matrimonial Infelicities-- His Marriage With Miss Conway Annulled.

New York, July 27.—In the suit of Miss Conway Levy, the well-known singer, against Julius Levy, the cornetist, asking that her marriage be annulled on the ground that at the time it was contracted Mr. Levy had a wife living, Judge Donohue, in the supreme court, granted her request, annulling the marriage on the above ground. At the time Levy married Miss Conway he had been divorced from a woman whom he had previously married in England. She afterward came to this country and began a suit to have it set aside on the ground that it had been procured without notice to her, and she asked for an abso. divorce from Levy on the ground of his marriage with Miss Conway. The case was sent to a referee, but before he reported she returned to England. Another suit was afterward brought and the decree of divorce was granted.

Then Mrs. Levy began a suit claiming that the supreme court decree should be vacated on the ground that it had been fraudulently procured. She succeeded in her endeavor, and the English woman was once more made the wife of Mr. Levy. Miss Conway then brought the present suit for the annulment of her marriage to Mr. Levy, in which she has just been successful.

Call at the Central carriage works on River street and examine their work, it can't be beat.

A New Thames Tunnel.

The Thames tunnel, which used to be one of the marvels of London, is as a thing comparable with the iron subway which passengers will be sped by under the bed of the Thames. The famous work of Brunel cost £3,000, whereas the contract for the electrical tunnel has been let for £383,000.

The Thames tunnel, begun in 1825, was not finished till 1843, but the tunnel, instead of taking eighteen years to construct, will be completed in sixteen months. Of course, the Charing Cross tunnel will not be so large as this tunnel, which consists of two parallel arches of masonry, fourteen feet broad, fifteen feet high, and 1,200 feet long, but it will be much wider than gloomy and unpleasant subway at tower, which, although 400 yards long, is only seven feet in diameter.

The precise dimensions of the new tunnel are not given in the prospectus, although it is stated that plans and specifications have been issued on which the order of the contractors has been issued. It will be two-thirds of a mile length. There will be a double line railway, along which the constant stream of electrically-driven cars will pass at the rate of eleven miles an hour. Each carriage will run separately like a omnibus, and be driven by electrical currents generated by dynamo-driven dynamos, and conveyed by means of a central cable to a dynamo in the center of the carriage.

The tunnel will be composed of iron sections lined with white bricks, and lighted, it is to be hoped, with incandescent lamps. The steel rails will be laid upon continuous longitudinal sleepers of timber imbedded in the concrete floor, so that there will be no balance or other moist substance to produce any smell or feeling of dampness or moldiness. The carriages will be constructed entirely of steel and wood, without any cloth or leather lining, similar to those which are attracted for the railways by Messrs. Stephenson, of New York. The wheels will be under the center of the carriage, with a wheel base of five. The floor of the carriages will only be nine inches above the rails, and the floors of the terminal platform be on the same level as the floor of the carriages. The center of the carriage occupied by the dynamo-machine, which end will be devoted to passengers, the department being for first and the other for second-class passengers. The rails will be distinguished by different colored lamps.

The advantages of electricity as a motor in tunnels are too obvious to need explanation. At one stroke it will dispel the noxious and stifling atmosphere which render the underground railway so disagreeable. "There is no smoking, no puffing and blowing, no dirt, no damp, everything is clean and dry. Whether it will be really profitable is another matter, but the cost of working the new tunnel railway is provided for by contract with Mr. Sillemans at very moderate terms. All the railing-stock and plant to be laid down for £12,000, and the railway is to be worked by the same man for £5,000 per annum and one-half of the yearly gross receipts and traffic in excess of five hundred tons will continue to go through an arch lined with white bricks under the avenue and the Victoria embankment. Of that arch, fifteen feet under the embankment constructed for another purpose will be used by the railway. The railway will pass through iron caissons under the river Thames, and again through an arch under College street and Vine street, and terminate at Waterloo station, where it will be directly connected with the platforms of the London and Southwestern Railway, and a separate approach from the York Road. If the electrical system there are many districts where a speedy application may be anticipated, not only in London, but in America, which is ever ready to adopt new schemes and entertain new projects.—Pull Mall Gazette.

A Model Obituary.

As soon as Pickles Smith had ceased laughing in that mournful way peculiar to himself, and Trustee Pullback had got through disputing with Samuel Sitt about the age of Julius Escariot, the triangle sounded and Brother Gardner rose and said:

"Death has once more invaded our ranks. My dear lady I received a letter from 'Gum' de informashun dat Brombrusht de Witt, an honorary member of dis club, residin' at Bowling Green, State of Kaintucky, had expired from airth to life? Has any member anythin' to offer?"

Judge Cadaver offered a resolution of sympathy for the bereaved widow and fatherless children.

Syntax Johnson moved that Paradise Club be draped in mourning for the space of sixty days.

Rev. Penstock moved that what was the Lime-Kilo Church loss was the decessation of Brombrusht de Witt, an honorary member of dis club, residin' at Bowling Green, State of Kaintucky, had expired from airth to life? Has any member anythin' to offer?"

Trustee Pullback suggested that the club contribute the sum of five thousand dollars towards a monument with an angel perched on top.

"Gum'len," said the President, as he waved them down, "I knew Brombrusht de Witt. In fact, he am de only man who ever stole my dog. He has eaten at my house, an' I has slept in his, an' spoken breakfast at de highest second-class hotel. We shall adopt a suitable obituary as follows: 'We am grieved dat Brombrusht has passed away, but would he had amounted to shucks had he been dead.'"

"He was kind to de poor, but he stole chickens from de rich."

"He was honest an' upright, but he never had a chance to trade horses or conduct a street kyar company."

"He had many virtues, but dey war' offset by many vices. While he would have established an orphan asylum if he had de money to do it, he invariably tried to pay his dues wid trade dollars or counterfeit haives."

"We shan't be over-anxious to inquir' an' him when we reach de nex' world."

"Gum'len, Brombrusht de Witt was an average man. He lived in de sivilization way, mixin' de good an' de bad. I think you couldn't allus tell wheder to fin' him leavin' or de front gate or lyin' on de grass behind de ba'n. He had his good an' his bad streaks, an' we shan't praise de just an conceal de las'. If he had am better off we am glad to see. If he was gone to any worse kentry dan dis it am our solemn duty to feel as sorry as we know how. Any resoluishuns mentionin' his wife or callin' on him much longer away, for he was too lazy to sup-pert a wife, consequently niver got married. We will hang a cheap piece of tarp on de doah, an' forgive him his sins. His shillin' dues he owed de club."
